21 GRADUATES RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES MOST INTERESTING

Twenty-one young people finished their training in Grayling schools and last week received graduation diplomas. It was a fine appearing class and when they marched upon the stage of the high school auditorium on Thursday night of last week they were given a fine ovation. They occupied two long rows upon the stage, taking their seats while the high school orchestra, under direction of Mrs. B. E. Smith, finished playing a march.

The following Class Day program was rendered:

It is our impression that this was the best carried out Class Day program that we have ever witnessed in Grayling and reflects a lot of credit upon the school faculty and especially upon Miss Harris, principal and senior class advisor. Miss Harris prepared the class for graduation and every part was presented in a straight forward and interesting manner. The essays had been well prepared and each was splendidly given. The school orchestra and Miss Cottle with her vocal solo were in keeping with the quality of the evening's program.

The program closed with the class song that had been composed by Albert Trudo, one of the graduates. It was very musical and pleasing and made a hit with the audience. The valedictory address by Miss Ruby Stephan is being published herewith which we are sure will be very interesting to our readers.

The commencement program was rendered Friday night. Principal on the program was the commencement address by Edwin L. Miller, assistant superintendent of schools of Detroit, and former president of the state teachers association.

The program began with a selection by the high school orchestra. After invocation by Rev. Culligan, Mrs. J. J. Miller, Miss Sallie, Clippert and Miss Cavanaugh sang very beautifully a vocal quartette.

Commencement Address
The commencement address by Edwin L. Miller left with the class a number of constructive ideas as to their duty as graduates. He told of some of his early school days, experiences and spoke of the high school as the greatest institution in the whole world—educating a whole nation of boys and girls. The speaker also cited some of the members of his own graduating class as examples of success, mentioning particularly four outstanding ones.

As assistant superintendent of the Detroit schools he stated that there are five fundamental principles toward which their efforts are directed. The first of these is that they go after health; second they go after figures to aid in thrift; third, language; fourth, courtesy; and fifth, citizenship. He characterized Lincoln as outstanding in these five principles and claimed him to have been the best educated man.

Further, we should be taught the worthy use of leisure, the abuse of which would ruin a nation, but if useful would make a great nation. He advocated the reading of great books, the studying of musical masters and artists, and the cultivation of character and industry, claiming that it was supremely disgraceful not to work.

Supt. B. E. Smith complimented the class upon their completion of their high school work and respectfully passed them over to the Board of Education and Mr. M. A. Bates, secretary of the board, gave out the diplomas.

The class colors of blue and gold were used extensively in the decorations and near the ceiling of the rear of the stage was the class motto—"Out of School Life Into Life's School." In gold gothic letters upon a background of blue. The front of the stage was a profusion of floral bouquets and baskets of flowers. It all looked very pretty and showed real effort on the part of the decorators.

On class night the girls wore dresses of blue with white collars and cuffs and the young men light trousers and dark coats. On commencement night conventional suits were worn by the young men, while the young ladies were in handsome new dresses.

Throughout the high school years, the class of 1926 has been an active

THE IDEAL AMERICAN

Valedictory Address by Miss Ruby Stephan

Following is the valedictory address given by Miss Ruby Stephan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Stephan, at the graduation exercises of Grayling high school, June 17th: The ideal American citizen of today is at once the most fortunate and the most unfortunate of men, blessed with opportunity and burdened with responsibility. At one time our land traced only a narrow strip along the Atlantic coast, now it encircles half the globe. At first we were only a handful of refugee settlers; now we are 110 million strong. We are now rich and respected as a foremost world power, the proud demonstrators of the practicality of self-government. Such is our heritage, but it is not ours to enjoy and to preserve only; we must perfect it and bequeath to the future a more abundant legacy than we received from the past. The life of a nation lies deeper than the surface, it is not a thing of gold, silver, steel or iron, not even flesh and blood. The fabric of a nation's life is woven from the character of her citizens. Sterling manhood made America and nothing else can preserve her. The future demands only that she make her coming citizen a man worthy of his place. To do this there are three things at his disposal—education, morality and patriotism. Each of these must be given a broad meaning and be impressed with all the earnestness of men who fight for life.

The "little red school house" was America's symbol of equal opportunity for learning, but the little red school house is no more. It passed with conditions that called it. In its day the three R's in the district

GREAT CHAUTAUQUA PROGRAM PLANNED

Fine Array of Talent Secured, Wide Variety and Excellent Quality

The officers and committee chairman of the Crawford County Chautauqua Association are confident that the 1926 program will surpass in every respect any program of recent years. It seems almost impossible that such splendid talent and attractions of such variety can be provided during five days at so low a cost as the price of the Chautauqua season ticket. The unusual quality and type of the attractions this year will cause a great many who have not held season tickets for the Chautauqua in the past, to buy them this year. There are a number of programs which in themselves are worth as much as the entire season ticket costs. It is believed that not only will a larger number of people buy season tickets, but that more of our citizens will be actively interested in increasing the attendance by active cooperation and boosting.

This year we are going to have a Chautauqua of which every citizen can be proud. Some of the attractions for this season are a three act dialect comedy "The Bubble"; Frye & Company, magicians and illusionists; Ward B. Flaxington; Green and his Band; Dr. Harry G. Hill; The Harmonymaid; The Parkinson Ensemble; Ethel L. Irwin, and the spectacular three act drama "A Message from Mars."

Many new features are planned for the special entertainment of the children of the Junior Chautauqua this year and we are assured that the plans for the Junior department far exceed anything in the past. No child of our community should be permitted to miss this feature.

With all of these features, it is certain that if any citizen in the community fails to take advantage of the Chautauqua, he or she will be certain to regret it. Let us all work together and loyally support the committees in charge, showing them that such splendid plans as they have made are appreciated. EVERYBODY BOOST!

HOUGHTON LAKE FOREST RESORT

We cannot fail to be mindful of the opening of Houghton Lake Forest Park for the season at Houghton Lake near Prudenville. The 1926 season there began with the opening of Johnson's Rustic Dance Palace, Michigan's finest and largest rustic dance pavilion.

This fine pavilion opened last Saturday night, and in order to do so it was necessary for forty carpenters and laborers to work like mad for the last few days in order to get the huge palace ready for the dancers. They slipped under the wire well ahead of the flag and put on one of the pleasantest opening parties that this region has ever seen. Santiago Calvo's South Americans nine-piece dance band furnished the music. Early in the evening the big floor was well filled with dancers, and all seemed to be enjoying the occasion immensely. Everything about the place is of rustic design and very artistic. The ceiling was of lattice and was a bower of artificial flowers and highly colored autumn leaves, and many floral baskets which contained the lights that supplied the indirect lighting, and which were frequently altered in their electrical effects. It is a beautiful place and will no doubt provide the people of that region with plenty of entertainment of that class.

The Houghton Lake Forest resort is new and comprises 1,500 acres and about two miles of lake shore. Already a number of fine cottages have been constructed there, and a dining hall is nearly ready for service. Also the foundation is in for a large hotel. Streets are being laid out through the forests about the resort but it is claimed that not a single tree will be disturbed except where it is necessary to clear the land for buildings and for streets.

Frank R. Johnson, the owner of Houghton Lake Forest park resides in Detroit and has travelled extensively, but was so attracted by the possibilities about Houghton Lake that he concluded to try and develop it for resorting purposes. In a conversation with the writer he stated that "The days are over when people go to lakes and watering places for rest and recreation and are willing to put up with any kind of accommodations such as living in tents and sleeping on the ground or on hard, uncomfortable beds, eating anything they can get—good, bad and indifferent. Modern people who enjoy the comforts of modern homes are demanding modern comforts while they are on their vacations. It is to such, he says, that he is catering. His cottages are well constructed with an idea of comfort and beauty and equipped with the most comfortable beds possible, modern kitchen equipment with electrical stoves and other electrical devices, thus making them just as fine and convenient as those of the finest homes.

Mr. Johnson says he has no hopes of making money on the project for the next five years and that in case he never makes a profit, he says that at least he will be having a good time. He is a most congenial host, and we predict that, due to the energetic advertising that he is doing, and his courteous treatment of guests that it will not be long before his hotel registers will bear names of people from scores of states, instead of just from Ohio, Illinois and Indiana, whose people already are coming here in increasing numbers. The enterprise of Mr. Johnson and his associates means a bigger and better business for all resort owners about Houghton and Higgins Lakes, and also our own beautiful Lake Margrethe. In fact the capacities of these places, we faithfully believe, are soon to be taxed to their limits. Thousands of people of Lower Michigan, as well as of many of the states south of us are mapping out summer trips and Michigan is the biggest talked of state of them all. Mr. Johnson has visioned this great prosperity and has "set his house in order" to receive them.

25 PER CENT OF CHILDREN IMMUNIZED AGAINST DIPHTHERIA

Lansing, Michigan, June 18.—Protection against diphtheria has been secured by 188,979 persons in Michigan since January, 1925, according to figures just made public by the Michigan Department of Health. (Toxin-antitoxin sufficient to immunize this number has been sent out by the department laboratory.)

"This means," says Dr. R. M. Olin, state commissioner of health, in discussing the report, "That approximately one-fourth of the 762,000 children of school age in Michigan are safe from diphtheria. It is a fine beginning. The next step is to make this equally true of pre-school children, and then increase both groups." In ten counties, the report shows, physicians and nurses from the State Department of Health have assisted local health and school authorities in giving toxin-antitoxin to 29,500 persons. Ionia, Washtenaw, Cass, Ogemaw, Presque Isle, Montcalm, Alger, Baraga, Kent and Genesee were the counties visited. Many other communities carried on campaigns unassisted.

The importance of protecting the pre-school child is especially stressed by health authorities, since 80 per cent of all diphtheria deaths are of children less than five years of age. It is also emphasized that no harmful effects result from the very mild toxin-antitoxin preparation now used.

SESQUI'S HIGH ST. IS DEDICATED

22 Buildings Comprise Thoroughfare Erected at Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition

High Street of 1776, the picturesque thoroughfare of Revolutionary War days which now is Philadelphia's busy Market street, has been dedicated at the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition at Philadelphia, as the major contribution of the Women's Board.

Women from eighteen foreign countries, and every state in the Union, as well as scores of visiting members of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, attended the ceremonies. The key of the "Town Hall," which imposes its memory-awakening facade across one end of the street, was presented to Mayor W. Freeland Kendrick, of Philadelphia, by Mrs. J. Willis Martin, chairman of the board. Accepting the symbol, Mayor Kendrick voiced warm appreciation of the encouragement, advice and practical aid given by the women to the Sesqui-Centennial Exhibition Association, which he heads, and Exposition officials generally.

Tribute likewise was paid to Miss Sarah B. Lowrie, who conceived the idea of building the street, and all who supported her. The Colonial Dames of America presented a flag for the Town Hall.

Color and life was lent the occasion when three men, caparisoned as the trio in the famous picture, "The Spirit of '76," led a procession of women singers and workers garbed in Colonial quaintness to form a square back of the speaker's stand.

Dr. William Harvey, of the Society of Friends, added an historic note when he uttered William Penn's prayer for the City of Philadelphia. A detachment of men of Co. K, 12th United States Infantry, supplied the military air.

The street comprises 22 separate structures embodying the forgotten picturesqueness of other days, including a market house to contain thirty booths where women will sell attractive articles to visitors. Mrs. Henriques Crawford will have charge for the summer.

GALATEA

Mrs. C. G. Clippert, with her music pupils and Miss Ruth Cavanaugh, with her dancing pupils, gave a very pleasing and entertaining program at the school auditorium Monday evening.

The story of "Galatea" was most beautifully portrayed in a feature dance by Jane Keyport and Betty Welsh. Betty's posing and dancing was done in her usual very graceful manner while Jane's interpretation of the artist and his work on the statue was most clever.

This dance was interspersed by piano selections, group dancing, solos and quartettes, which showed talent as well as efficient training. There was a large crowd in attendance and each number was received with the hearty applause deserving its rendition.

Galatea, a talented young sculptor and musician has been working on a statue. Today, however, his work is interrupted for it is a gala day in Italy—the day when the countrymen pay their tribute to the notables of the day. Many came to his studio to present him with gifts or to admire his work.

At last when Galatea has completed his statue he finds that he has fallen in love with the beautiful creature and prays to his gods to make her come to life. His gods answer his prayer.

The following program was given:

MRS. FRANK PHELPS DIES IN HUDSON

The funeral of Mrs. Eva Phelps, wife of Mr. Frank Phelps, was held in Hudson, Michigan, Sunday, June 13th. Mr. and Mrs. Phelps were former residents of Grayling and the former, a son of the late S. S. Phelps and step-son of Mrs. Etta Phelps, and while here was employed in the Four-nine drug store. He purchased a drug store in Hudson in 1911 in which city they have since resided. The Post-Gazette of that city, in their issue of June 15th published the following account of the funeral of Mrs. Phelps:

The funeral service for Mrs. Eva Hinds Phelps was held Sunday afternoon, June 13, and was largely attended. The Congregational church being packed to capacity by the hundreds of people who sadly paid the last final tributes of love and respect.

The many friends of the deceased both in Hudson and about the county and state sent beautiful flowers with the result that there was a wonderful array and amid these banks of flowers rested the casket.

CAN "SPRING TONIC" NOW FOR WINTER USE

"Rhubarb is the earliest of Nature's spring tonics—and the easiest fruit to can for use later on." So says Ina S. Lindman, former Home Bureau canning demonstrator, and graduate in domestic science of the teachers' college, Columbia University.

"On account of its high acid content, rhubarb seldom or never spoils, and it is one of the few things that may be preserved by the cold water method. Merely wash the stalks and cut them into pieces of the desired length. Pack in clean jars and fill overflowing with cold water. Seal and store."

Rhubarb preserved by this method may be used in any way that you would use the fresh product, and its flavor combines well with many other fruits. It is delicious with apricots, peaches, strawberries and pineapples. If the rhubarb is ready in your garden before strawberries are plentiful, try combining it with oranges and figs. Rhubarb Conserve—2 cups rhubarb, cut fine; 2 cups sugar; 1 orange, juice and grated rind; ½ cup blanched nuts, cut in small pieces. Directions: Combine ingredients; except nuts, and heat mixture until it is thick and clear. Add nuts; pour into clean, hot jars and seal at once.

Peas with Lettuce

2 cups peas, canned.
2 heads lettuce.
1 teaspoon lemon juice.
One-sixth teaspoon pepper.
½ teaspoon salt.

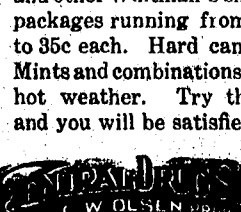

Directions: Put the peas, pepper, salt and butter together into a saucepan. Wash the lettuce, lay it over the peas, cover closely and simmer very gently until the lettuce is wilted. Add the lemon juice and serve immediately.

REMEMBERING OLD "IRON-SIDES"

The Constitution is a symbol of patriotism. The story of its sturdy defense of the American flag is one of the most glorious chapters in the history of the United States. This story should be known by every American child, and every child should be privileged to give a penny or a dime toward the preservation of "Old Ironsides." No hour could be more usefully employed than in inculcating into childish minds the lessons of patriotism and valor that cluster about the name of "Old Ironsides."—Washington Post.

LET US CELEBRATE!

Fourth of July this year will mark the 150th birthday of the Declaration of American Independence, and the centennial of the death of its author, Thomas Jefferson. For that reason there will be added significance to the occasion that should not be overlooked by patriotic communities who

Both in appearance and in service, concrete is the aristocrat of pavements

What Concrete Pavement Did for Cass City

Until about three years ago the main thoroughfare in Cass City, Michigan, had nothing but a gravelled surface. Heavy traffic made upkeep costly. No wonder local authorities and taxpayers became disgusted.

In 1923 they decided to put an end to this sorry state of affairs. Profiting from the experience of other Michigan cities, they decided to pave with portland cement concrete.

Cass City has taken on a new air of prosperity. Store fronts have been repaired and painted. Farmers come to town more frequently to trade. Tourists stop to spend their money. Business is a lot brisker—since the coming of concrete.

Anyone in and around Cass City will tell you what a wise investment this has been.

Concrete streets will bring new prosperity to any city, and at the same time put an end to costly street maintenance.

All of the facts are in our free booklet on "Concrete Streets." Ask for your copy.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Part wolf, part dog—when two months old Baree has his first meeting with an enemy, Papayushew (young owl). Fighting back the antagonists are suddenly plunged into a swollen creek.

CHAPTER II.—Badly buffeted, and half drowned Baree is finally flung on the bank, but the water has destroyed his sense of direction and he is lost, lonely and hungry. For many days his life is one of fear and distress. He finally wanders into the trapping grounds of a halfbreed, Pierrot Du Quenne, and his daughter, Nepeese the Willow. Taking Baree for a Wolf, Nepeese shoots and wounds him, but he escapes.

CHAPTER III.—The wolf blood in Baree becomes uppermost. He rapidly learns Nature's secrets, though he lacks no comrades and is desperately lonely.

CHAPTER IV.—Following Wakayoo, the black bear, Baree subsists royally on the catches of fish the big fellow leaves. He comes again into Pierrot's trapping domain. Pierrot shoots Wakayoo. Nepeese, insisting Baree is a dog, not a wolf, tries to capture him. Baree is strongly drawn to the girl, but cannot entirely overcome his dread of man.

CHAPTER V.—Baree makes friends with a colony of beavers, losing much of his sense of loneliness.

CHAPTER VI.—Bush McTaggart, factor at Lac Bain, Hudson's Bay company's post, man of evil life, has long coveted Nepeese, even to the extent of offering marriage, but makes no progress with his suit. On his way to Pierrot and Nepeese McTaggart takes Baree in a trap, and in a struggle is bitten. With the dog he comes to Pierrot's cabin.

CHAPTER VII.—Nepeese claims Baree as her pet, bathing the wounds inflicted by McTaggart and the dog had bitten him. Then, promising to give him a definite answer to his love-making, Nepeese lures McTaggart to the edge of a deep pool and humiliates him by plunging him into the water, at the same time taunting him for presuming to address her. Blood poisoning develops from Baree's bite, McTaggart and Pierrot hasten to Lac Bain to secure medical treatment.

CHAPTER VIII.—Nepeese has spent three winters at a mission, where she has learned to read and sew. On her seventeenth birthday she fashions a costume which properly sets forth her really great beauty.

CHAPTER IX.—Baree hears the Call of the Wild, and his wolf blood responds. He leaves Nepeese to find a mate and hunt with the pack. Disappointed in the escape of a caribou they had been chasing in the expectation of a feast, the wolves turn on Baree. He escapes, though badly hurt, and with the Wolf Call definitely extinguished.

CHAPTER X.—Baree returns to Nepeese, who nurses him back to life. A fellow trapper, DeBar, visits Pierrot. He has a message from McTaggart ordering Pierrot to go to Lac Bain at once on business. Pierrot is suspicious, but goes. In his absence, McTaggart visits the cabin and is inflamed by a sight of the girl in all the splendor of her new costume.

CHAPTER XI.—McTaggart tells Nepeese he has come to take her for his wife, and attempts to seize her. Baree springs at him. The factor shoots the dog and thinks him dead. While McTaggart struggles with Nepeese Pierrot returns. Maddened at the sight, the factor attacks McTaggart. In the fight the factor shoots and kills Pierrot. Nepeese makes her escape, with McTaggart in pursuit. On the verge of capture, the girl plunges into a pool, to what seems certain death.

In Pierrot's face Nepeese saw what had happened. Her heart died in her breast as she looked upon the swift and terrible change wrought by sudden death. Slowly Pierrot straightened. His eyes were wide for a moment—wide and staring. He made no sound. She could not see his lips move. And then he fell toward her, so that McTaggart's body was free. Blindly and with an agony that gave no evidence in cry or word she flung herself down beside him. He was dead.

How long Nepeese lay there, how long she waited for Pierrot to move, to open his eyes, to breathe, she would never know. In that time McTaggart rose to his feet and stood leaning against the wall, the pistol in his hand, his brain clearing itself as he saw his final triumph. His work did not frighten him. Even in that tragic moment as he stood against the wall, his defense—if it ever came to a defense—framed itself in his mind. Pierrot had murderously assaulted him—without cause. In self-defense he had killed him. Was he not the Factor of Lac Bain? Would not the Company and the law believe his word before that of this girl? His brain leaped with the old excitement. It would never come to that—a betrayal of this struggle and death in the cabin—after he had finished with her! She would not be known for all time as La Bete Noire. No, they would bury Pierrot, and she would return to Lac Bain with him. If she had been helpless before, she was ten times more helpless now. She would never tell of what had happened in the cabin.

He forgot the presence of death as he looked at her, bowed over her father so that her hair covered him like a silken shroud.

He replaced the pistol in his holster and drew a deep breath into his lungs. He was still a little undecided on his feet, but his face was again the face of a devil. He took a step, and it was then there came a sound to rouse the girl. In the shadow of the farther wall Baree had struggled to his hanches, and now he growled.

Slowly Nepeese lifted her head. A power which she could not resist drew her eyes up until she was looking into the face of Rush McTaggart. She had almost lost consciousness of his presence; her senses were cold and dazed—it was as if her own heart had stopped beating along with Pierrot's. What she saw in the Factor's face dragged her out of the numbness of her grief back to the abyss of her own peril. He was standing over her. In his face there was no pity, nothing of horror at what he had done—only an insane excitement as he looked not at Pierrot's dead body, but at her. He put out a hand, and it rested on her head. She felt his thick fingers gripping her hair, and his eyes blazed like embers of fire behind watery films. She struggled to rise, but with his hands at her hair he held her down.

"Great God!" she breathed.

She uttered no other words, no plea for mercy, no other sound but a dry, hopeless sob. In that moment neither of them heard or saw Baree. Twice in crossing the cabin his hind-quarters had sagged to the floor. Now he was close to McTaggart. He wanted to give a single lunge to the man-brute's back and snap his thick neck as he would have broken a caribou-bone. But he had no strength. He was still partially paralyzed from his forehead back. But his jaws were like iron, and they closed savagely on McTaggart's leg.

With a yell of pain the Factor released his hold on the Willow, and she staggered to her feet. For a precious half-minute she was free, and as the Factor kicked and struck to loose Baree's hold, she ran to the cabin door and out into the day. The cold air struck her face; it filled her lungs with new strength; and without thought of where hope might lie she ran through the snow into the forest.

McTaggart appeared at the door just in time to see her disappear. His leg was torn with baree's had felled his fangs, but he felt no pain as he ran in pursuit of the girl. She could not get far. An evanescent cry, inhuman as the cry of a beast, came in a great breath from his gaping mouth as he saw that she was staggering weakly as she fled. He was halfway to the edge of the forest when Baree dragged himself over the threshold. His jaws were bleeding where McTaggart had kicked him again and again before his fangs gave way. Halfway between, his eyes were a seared spot, as if a red-hot poker had been laid there for an instant. This was where McTaggart's bullet had gone. A quarter of an inch deeper, and it would have meant death. As it was, it had been like the blow of a heavy club, paralyzing his senses and sending him limp and unconscious against the wall. He could move on his feet now without falling, and slowly he followed in the tracks of the man and the girl.

As she ran, Nepeese's mind became all at once clear and reasoning. She turned into the narrow trail over which McTaggart had followed her once before, but just before reaching the chasm, she swung sharply to the right. She could see McTaggart. He was not running fast, but was gaining steadily, as if enjoying the sight of her helplessness, as he had enjoyed it in another way on that other day Two hundred yards below the deep pool into which she had pushed the Factor—just beyond the shadows out of which he had dragged himself to safety—was the beginning of River Feather's gorge. An appalling thing was shaping itself in her mind as she ran to it—a thing that with each gasping breath she drew became more and more a great and glorious hope. At last she reached it and looked down.

And as she looked, there whirled up out of her soul and trembled on her lips the swan-song of her mother's people.

Our fathers—come!
Come from out of the valley.
Guide us—for today we die.
And the winds whisper of death!

She raised her arms. Against the white wilderness beyond the chasm she stood tall and slim. Fifty yards behind her the Factor from Lac Bain stopped suddenly in his tracks. "Ah," he mumbled. "Is she not wonderful!" And behind McTaggart, coming faster and faster, was Baree.

Again the Willow looked down. She was at the edge, for she had no fear in this hour. Many times she had clung to Pierrot's hand as she looked over. Down there no one could fall and live. Fifty feet below her the water which never froze was smashing itself into froth among the rocks. It was deep and black and terrible, for between the narrow rock walls the sun did not reach it. The roar of it filled the Willow's ears.

She turned and faced McTaggart. Even then he did not guess, but came toward her again, his arms stretched out ahead of him. Fifty yards! It was not much, and shortened swiftly.

Once more the Willow's lips moved. After all, it is the mother soul that gives us faith to meet eternity—and it was to the spirit of her mother that the Willow called in the hour of death. With the call on her lips she plunged into the abyss, her wind-whipped hair clinging to her in a distasteful shroud.

ONE HUNDRED LAUGHS !!

SCENE FROM "THE BUBBLE"

Children blow soap bubbles and as they float away their eyes are so entranced by the colorful lights in the bubble that they start with disappointment when the bubble bursts. Men are not much different. The gorgeous rainbow promises of wealth in a financial bubble will some times cause the most conservative to lose his sense of values, until the bubble bursts and then comes disillusionment. Just often enough to keep the mind in doubt, the vision in The Bubble becomes a reality.

The question in the three-act comedy presented on the first night of the Chautauqua is, Does the old German delicatessen keeper, Gustav Mueller, see a bubble, or is he keen enough to see reality where persons of less experience see the bubble? The eccentricities of Gustav and his wife Amelia, the romance of their daughter Rosie, and her young lover Dick, will interest and entertain you from the rise of the curtain on the first act to the finale in the third act. It is a play that is full of action. So rapidly does one funny situation follow another that at the end of two hours, when the curtain falls, you can hardly believe that it has been more than a few minutes. Only when you come to the realization that your sides are sore from laughter are you convinced that you must have been laughing for the full two hours.

Great Magic Show for Chautauqua

CHINESE TORTURE CABINET

On the second day of the Chautauqua we are to have a program of magic and illusions that is very different than the ordinary entertainment of this type. William Eugene Frye, master magician and illusionist, with his assistants, Leah Miles and James Quillet, present a program that has continuity. Each trick or illusion bears a definite relationship to the one that precedes or follows it. This tying together of the various parts of the program has been so masterfully done, that at the close of the entertainment you have the sense of having witnessed a complete performance, rather than a series of independent tricks. Many illusions are presented to musical accompaniment. The company carries nearly a ton of paraphernalia. So elaborate is the equipment that the enlarged Chautauqua stage will not accommodate it and two settings are required.

The program starts in mystery and progresses with increasing bewilderment. It seems almost impossible that three people could accomplish so many marvelous feats in so short a period of time. The floating sphere, the spirit slates, the duck and the egg, the wonder screen, cooking by radio, the spirit cabinet, the fish bowl production, the catching of live fish from the laps of the audience, the snoring of doves in mid-air, the vanishing pigeons, the Chinese torture cabinet mystery—these are but a few of the illusions that will mystify the Chautauqua audience.

A MAN OF MYSTERY

What do you know about the planet Mars? Is it inhabited? If so, by what kind of people? Are they like the men of earth in form and character? Are they subject to the same emotions? Are they peaceful or war like? Does intellect or brute force prevail? Has civilization on that planet reached the high stage that it has on earth? These as well as many other questions will be answered by the mysterious Messenger who will travel 35,000,000 miles on the fifth night of the Chautauqua to appear before our audience. His coming, as well as his going, is shrouded in mystery. Even the source of the uncanny power which he wields is mysterious. All will agree that "The Message from Mars" is from every standpoint a great play.

CHAUTAUQUA ORATOR

DR. HARRY G. HILL

In his lecture on the fourth day of our Chautauqua, Dr. Hill will lead his audience on a voyage of discovery. Few people are conscious of their own hidden resources, their own undeveloped powers, and their own great possibilities. Dr. Hill possesses the faculty of treating great subjects in a simple attractive style. New faith in one's self—new hope for the future—new ways of success and happiness—will be revealed by Dr. Hill in his inspiring lecture "AN UNDISCOVERED WORLD."

WARD B. FLAXINGTON

There are two kinds of patriotism—The Patriotism of Peace and the Patriotism of War. As great as is the variance in the evidences of these two types, the fact remains that their ultimate purpose is the same—service to one's country. The Patriotism of War requires a willingness to die for one's country; the Patriotism of Peace requires not only a willingness but a determination to live for one's country. Ward B. Flaxington, the orator on the second day of the Chautauqua, possesses both kinds of patriotism and he has put both of them into practice. As a soldier in the American Expeditionary Forces of the World War, he struggled in the slime and the mud of the trenches. As an American citizen in peace, he is struggling in the muck of social unrest, endeavoring to analyze and throw the white light of reason upon the problems that America faces today. His clear forceful presentation of his subject inspires and commands admiration.

BAND DIRECTOR

CHARLES E. GREEN

The name of Charles E. Green has become synonymous with excellence in band music. Three years ago Green and His Band appeared on the Chautauqua program in most of the towns in which they are appearing this year. So pronounced was the success of that tour that many Chautauqua Committees each year have asked for the return of the Band. In 1924, this Band toured a Community Chautauqua Circuit which included many of the mid-west and eastern cities, including Chicago, Detroit, Toledo, Dayton, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Buffalo, Albany, New Britain, New London and New Haven, Conn., and Springfield, Mass.

DUTCH MAIDENS

PARKINSON ENSEMBLE

A charming group of instrumentalists, the Parkinson Ensemble will present the afternoon program on the fifth day of our Chautauqua. One feature of their program will be a group of Dutch numbers presented in Dutch costumes and wooden shoes. Miss Frances Parkinson, cellist; Miss Florence Hood, violinist; Miss Ruth Lash, pianist, are the members of this company. Well known classical selections, as well as the better popular numbers will make up their program.

HARMONY MAIDS

Add to beautiful voices, splendid personalities and a sense of entertainment values commonly known as showmanship, and you have a combination that is certain to please. All of this and more is possessed by Harriett Krauth, well known Chicago soprano, and Lillian May Houslin, contralto, known as Indiana's finest entertainer. These young ladies have an enviable record as entertainers before state and national conventions and other national gatherings. To them with Opal DeLong, pianist and piano accordionist, they form an entertainment company unsurpassed. Vocal solos and duets, character songs, action songs, beautifully composed novelty numbers, piano accordion solos, effective lighting—in fact, everything that goes to make up a perfect entertainment program has been incorporated in the afternoon concert and the evening prelude of this company on the fourth day.

Green and His Band to Return

Green and His Band are always favorites with Chautauqua audiences in all parts of the country. Charles E. Green, the organizer of this Band, has a fine sense of program building. He knows what people like. Also he knows what they ought to like. Also he knows how to mix just enough of both to make his program entertaining and at the same time, musically right.

The afternoon and evening concerts of this Band on the third day, while including well known band selections such as "Raymond Over-ture" and "William Tell," are not made up of time worn numbers. Descriptive numbers, humorous numbers, characteristic numbers and a tour of the principal cities of the novelties, as well as stirring marches, mid-west and east, where it has been a feature of the program. These effects are especially arranged for this Band, many of the arrangements being made by Herman Bellstedt, who for many years has written the principal arrangements for Sousa's Band.

Not only do Green and His Band provide a feast for the ear but they are visually perfect. Uniforms are striking, the instruments are beautiful and the stage is set in gold satin hangings. Special colored lighting effects are employed to enhance the effectiveness of the interpretation of the music.

Most of the towns on this circuit had the pleasure of hearing Green and His Band in the summer of 1923. Since that time the Band has made a tour of the principal cities of the mid-west and east, where it has been enthusiastically acclaimed as one of the great bands of the country.

A MESSAGE FROM MARS

Heretofore the dramatic productions as Aunt Martha, Edward Green as possible on Chautauqua platforms Arthur Drews, Florence Hood as Bella, J. Allen Saunders as Horace of stage room and the theatrical Parker and Ruth Lash as Minnie parapsychical necessary to attain Temple. Other members of the cast playing the parts of Mrs. Chereen, stage and lighting effects provided by Sir Edward Vivian, Mr. Chapman, the new tent equipments being used this year for our Chautauqua, this handicap is overcome and on the fifth night of the Chautauqua we will have the fantastical comedy, "A Message from Mars." From a scenic and spectacular standpoint, this is a pretentious production.

The story of the play is one of intense interest. It is a play which once seen will never be forgotten. Mars, sent to earth to accomplish a successful runs in London, New York, Chicago and other dramatic centers are pleasantly remembered. The superb cast, which presents this play includes Hugh Douglas as his Chautauqua tent will unquestionably be packed to capacity.

CHICAGO WELCOMES CATHOLIC PRELATES

Immense Demonstration in Coliseum—Coolidge Sends Message.

Chicago.—Chicago extended her civic welcome to the twenty-eighth International Eucharistic congress with an immense demonstration in the Coliseum.

Welcomed by nation, state and city, John Cardinal Bourne stood silently before 12,000 persons, while for fully two minutes the great throng paid him tribute with cheers and applause. The papal legate, personal representative of the pope at the twenty-eighth Eucharistic congress, heard cordial welcomes extended to him by Catholic and Protestant leaders.

Mayor Dwyer, speaking for the city; Governor Small, representing the commonwealth; Secretary of Labor Davis, with the message from President Coolidge and his own addressees; Robert M. Switzer, for the Catholic charities; Samuel Insull for Catholic Italy and the commercial and financial interests of the municipality; the telegram from Senator Charles S. Deneen, and finally, Cardinal Bonzano, accepting the welcome, piled up the program into a great dramatic unity.

In his message to Cardinal Mundelein, read by Secretary Davis, President Coolidge regretted that he was unable to accept the invitation to attend the meeting in person and then dwell briefly on the need for and value of religion in the life of a nation.

"Material prosperity cannot be secured unless it rests on spiritual realities," he said.

Replying specifically to President Coolidge's declaration for religious freedom, Cardinal Bonzano said:

"It is plain from the words of your distinguished President that he believes religion and morality, as well as knowledge, to be essential to good government."

Official announcement has been made that the 1928 meeting of the congress will be held in Sydney, Australia.

Auto Breaks Records, New York to Frisco

San Francisco.—All trans-continental vehicular speed records were shattered when a Studebaker automobile, which left New York at 2:07 a. m. one day arrived here at 12:27 three and a half days later.

Ad Jenkins and Ray Peck, Salt Lake City business men, made the trip. They smashed the fastest passenger train time between the two cities by 12 hours and 5 minutes and knocked off 16 hours and 25 minutes from the previous automobile speed record. The 3,471 miles were made at an average of 40 1/5 miles an hour.

To Show Opposition to Debt Settlement

Paris.—Crippled war veterans hobbling on crutches, blind veterans, led by dogs and mutilated heroes in wheel chairs will lead a parade of 60,000 French war legionnaires up the Champs Elysees and around the Arch of Triumph on July 4 as a protest against the debt settlement, according to plans of the veterans' executive council.

To show that the demonstration is not one against America, the Stars and Stripes will be carried in the procession, among the 2,600 flags representing the veteran posts.

Australia Has Plans to Force Arbitration

Melbourne.—The commonwealth house of representatives passed a conciliation and arbitration bill which, reconstitutes the commonwealth arbitration court and grants the judges wider powers. The bill appoints conciliation commissioners and permits the government to intervene in the interests of the public when standard working hours or basic wages are disputed. The Laborites support the measure.

Farm Loan Interest Rate Officially Cut

Washington.—The farm loan board announced a reduction of from 5 to 4 1/2 per cent in the interest rate on direct loans to co-operative marketing organizations by intermediate credit banks. A cut in the rediscount rate of banks from 5 to 4 1/2 per cent, effective July 1, was also announced.

Congress Likely to Quit Duties June 30

Washington.—The Republican steering committee of the house of representatives decided upon June 30 as a suitable day for the adjournment of congress, continuing the session four days beyond Saturday, June 28, which was the original date chosen.

Pope Issues a Denial

Rome.—Pope Pius issued a denial of rumors that the Catholic church was acting politically with respect to Asia. The denial was forwarded in an apostolic letter to vicars and prelates in Asia.

Spain's Attitude Unchanged

Madrid.—Spain will remain firm in her attitude for a seat in the league of nations, Foreign Minister Yanguas said at a banquet in his honor here in a speech.

COURTESY ALWAYS PAYS

The tourists are beginning to come. The summer resorts are opening. Soon the village streets and the highways will be busy places.

And one of the best advertisements for a town is the spirit of courtesy that is extended the visitor. Let us make this community conspicuous for the manner in which to make the stranger welcome inside the city gates.

WITH THE MAGICIAN

JAMES QUELLETT LEAH MILES

As a prelude to the magical program on the second day of the Chautauqua, and as assistants presenting musical accompaniments to some of the illusions of the magician Leah Miles, soprano, pianist and saxophonist, and James Quillet, baritone and accompanist, show unusual versatility. Miss Miles is a thoroughgoing musician and has had many years' experience in large orchestras, as well as in smaller musical organizations where her work has been featured. Mr. Quillet is a young pianist of ability, who provides a splendid accompaniment for the solo work of Miss Miles and whose voice blends perfectly with hers in pleasing vocal duets. In the magician's program in the evening, Miss Miles plays the part of the Chinese Princess who goes to her death in the mysterious Chinese Torture Cabinet with a song on her lips.

JUNIOR CHAUTAUQUA

Chautauqua Enthusiast, Rah, Rah, Rah!
Johnny has it, Susie has it
So has Pa
Junior Chautauqua, Rah, Rah, Rah!

Yes sir, Chautauqua things have begun to hum. Everybody's buying tickets for the program, under the Big Brown Tent. But the children of the Junior Chautauqua are going to get ahead of the grown-up folks this year for sure, because they're going to have eight days of Chautauqua while the grown-ups will have only five.

The Chautauqua Playleader will arrive four days before the Chautauqua opens, and the very next morning the Junior Chautauqua program will start. Every boy and girl in town can attend the sessions free, meet the Playleader and enjoy the good times during the pre-Chautauqua days. After the tent arrives a ticket will be required; there will be a parade, games, stories, yells, stunts, Junior town meetings, music appreciation, children's revue and frolic, and maybe a field meet or a baseball game. Juniors, get ready for eight joy days.

Veils for Limbs!

BE sure to see our sheer silk Iron Clad Stockings. They are like clinging veils that beautify and accentuate each graceful curve. There's a lovely soft texture about Iron Clad silk that is a revelation to you. Remember to ask for the style with 23 inches of pure silk instead of the usual 20. This style has a double sole, 4-ply heel and toe, and 7-inch extra elastic mercerized top that means wear—and wear—and wear!

Texaco Gasoline

What it does

It gives you a quick start

On account of the low initial boiling point, and high percentage of the volatile fractions which vaporize quickly in a cold engine.

It gives you a quicker pickup

Because of its higher volatility and low end point, it forms a dry gas in the manifold which floods evenly to the cylinders and avoids flooding.

It gives you more miles per gallon

Because it works best on a leaner mixture—more air, less gas. This insures fuel economy that shows itself in more miles per gallon.

school and classics in college produced thinkers. But education has taken on a new meaning. The three R's have been taken by manual training and domestic science, by mechanics and mining; classical study has yielded to sciences and professions. Education now produces workers; but it must not stop there, education must not teach our youth to know how to do, but how to be. It must make us citizens.

The weakness of our educational system is that it teaches the mind and trains the hand, but does not reach the heart. Looking far down the years tonight, I see on a bleak shore a jagged rock upon which a band of exiles are fervently praying. When I remember why they were there, what sacrifices they make for their faith, I tremble to think how lightly we hold that faith which bored their hearts. Heaven forbid that we should forget that our land is first of all Christian. Our schools must produce not merely gymnasts and mechanical magicians, but moral giants. These tasks fulfilled shall do a lot toward producing the ideal citizen, but we also need a new love of country and new expression of that love. The patriot of '76 gave up his life in battle for freedom. In '61 patriotism meant the sacrifice of life for "the stranger within our gates," and in the World War our soldier boys fought to rid the world of military despotism. Even though it is admirable it is not the highest form of patriotism. The citizen must be ready to answer the call of arms and also of peace. War is passing and with it the idea that devotion to country finds its truest expression in cheers and flags, bayonets and drums.

The patriot of the future must consider he serves his country when he participates in any form of honest business. When he votes, he must cast his ballot as if it were a bullet fired at a deadly enemy. In selecting officers, personal worth should rise above party names. In looking for an office he must do it with a desire to make his country better.

Such must be the coming citizen. Such an education having given him mind and heart, such a morality having purified his life at home and such a patriotism having sanctified his all to the fatherland, one can preserve America. From him alone can "this nation, under God, receive a new birth of freedom." Without him, "government for the people, by the people and of the people" must "perish from the earth."

After a war in which three-fourths of the civilized people of the world took part, we find many of the countries bordering on chaos. There never was a time more than now, that we needed well bred, well educated young men and women to do intellectual work and counteract the evils.

Our educated young people must stand for law, order and good government, essentially we have learned in high school. We wish to thank our parents for providing this education for us and the teachers for their kindness and patience when we were slow to learn.

And we have chosen blue and gold for our colors. We have not taken an Alice blue or cerise, but an enduring shade from the primary colors in the rainbow which God set in the clouds. So we have chosen the blue for honor and blend with it the gold. The rich gold of pure value, the color of sunshine and symbol of all glory.

We are going out of school life and into life's school and on our shoulders may rest the future of our government. The knowledge that we have acquired of our country through the helpful aid of our teachers enables us to respect it and make it a better government.

these exercises tonight we shall cease to exist as a class and it becomes my duty to say farewell. For many years we have been looking forward to this day when we should be proud graduates, but now that the hour has come to part, there is a feeling of loneliness comes over us. We may visit these scenes again, but a change will have come over them and only in fancy will they appear the same. Some of the happiest days of our lives have been spent within these walls, among those we love so well, and as long as life lasts, they will never be forgotten.
